Prayer for the Day

Ruler of the everlasting kingdom, prince of peace, champion of the despised:

you are the king;

you make a cross your throne;

you wear a crown of thorns;

you call your subjects friends.

Help us to take up our cross,

to hunger and thirst for all that is good;

then will your kingdom come on earth as in heaven. Amen.

Psalm 132:1-12, 13-18

Theme

This week churches around the world are marking the end of another liturgical year and celebrating Christ the King or the Reign of Christ Sunday. For us it is also Aotearoa Sunday, which really reminds us of how slow we were in this land to live out the reign of Christ with ngā iwi ō Aotearoa and the first Anglican Church in this land. And it is Stir-up Sunday – all of this stirs us up, I hope.

Today we hear the last words of David the King. He wasn't a great king. His son and grandson blew it. He is not a great model of what the "kingship of Christ" is about. And yet his reign is held up as the pinnacle, and his last words are worth reflecting on.

In contrast to this royal image of Christ the King, we hear Pilate's interrogation of Jesus in John's gospel. An interesting choice given how little "king language" appears in this gospel. Here we meet a Jesus who did not accept the traditional understanding of king. He was nothing like David. His kingship is revealed in his crucifixion. His kingship is seen when he washed his disciples' feet. His kingship is shaped by transforming compassion and a persistent commitment to justice and love. It made room for creativity and hope. It looks nothing like Pilate's understanding, or Caesar's, or any other ruler then and now. It is not of this world. Something different is at play. Nor is it just in heaven. The reign of God is here and now.

So, as we grapple with our new normal shaped by a little virus, what future do we imagine in Christ? What values and ways of being will shape that future? How is God stirring us up so that we get on with the work of the kingdom?

Notices:

Sunday and Mid-week Communion services. Following new advice from the Bishop, vestry has decided to find our new normal. Starting from Sunday 28 November, Advent 1, there will be two in person Sunday services; at 8.30am and 10am - yes, different times. Communion in one kind (bread only) will be offered at both services. Quiet singing (behind masks) will be offered at the 10am service. Both services will require you to be masked throughout and to maintain a 1 metre distance. Normally the 10am service will be offered online, but not on the 28th. The vicar and his phone will be in Wellington. Rev Deborah Garret will be presiding at both these services.

The mid-week communion service will start on Tuesday 30th November.

We would invite those who are not vaccinated to not attend in order to offer a safe space for those who are more vulnerable. We will NOT be asking for your vaccine status when you arrive.

Those who wish to have morning tea together are invited to go to Mega Mitre 10 after the service. Vestry will revisit this next year.
